

CHIHARU SHIOTA: THE UNSETTLED SOUL

The Unsettled Soul is the first exhibition in the Czech Republic by Berlin-based Japanese artist Chiharu Shiota (b. 1972). Renowned for her distinctive visual language, which combines drawing, performance, sculpture, and installation art, Shiota addresses fundamental existential concerns. Through large-scale thread installations incorporating everyday objects, she creates powerful, dreamlike environments. In her work, threads symbolise various types of connections, such as blood vessels, human relationships, or territorial bonds. Shiota weaves poetic worlds where personal history resonates with collective memory. In the artist's own words, she "draws in space" to manifest "a presence in the absence".

For Kunsthalle Praha, Chiharu Shiota has conceived a journey into the human condition, exploring the mystery of life and death and the passage of time. The artist has transformed the exhibition spaces with four immersive interventions, inviting the viewer to reflect on their own perceptions of the past and the present as well as the transitory nature of existence.

While in Gallery 1 the works Crossing Paths with Fate and Silent Concert question the notion of temporality, in Gallery 2 Multiple Realities and The Heart in Your Home examine the boundary between inner and outer worlds. In addition to these recent installations, the exhibition offers an overview of Chiharu Shiota's artistic trajectory since the 1990s, presented through a selection of works, films, archives, and a chronology located on the second floor.

A series of lectures, workshops, and other special events will take place as part of the special programme accompanying the exhibition.

TransformArt
 10 03 – 12 05 2025

TransformArt is a regular series of lectures on contemporary art and its intersections with other subjects of study, featuring prominent figures from curatorial, artistic, and academic circles. The course is designed for anyone who wants to understand the role of contemporary art in our daily lives, whether they are students preparing for art universities or professionals looking to broaden their horizons with artistic topics.

You can find the entire programme on our website.

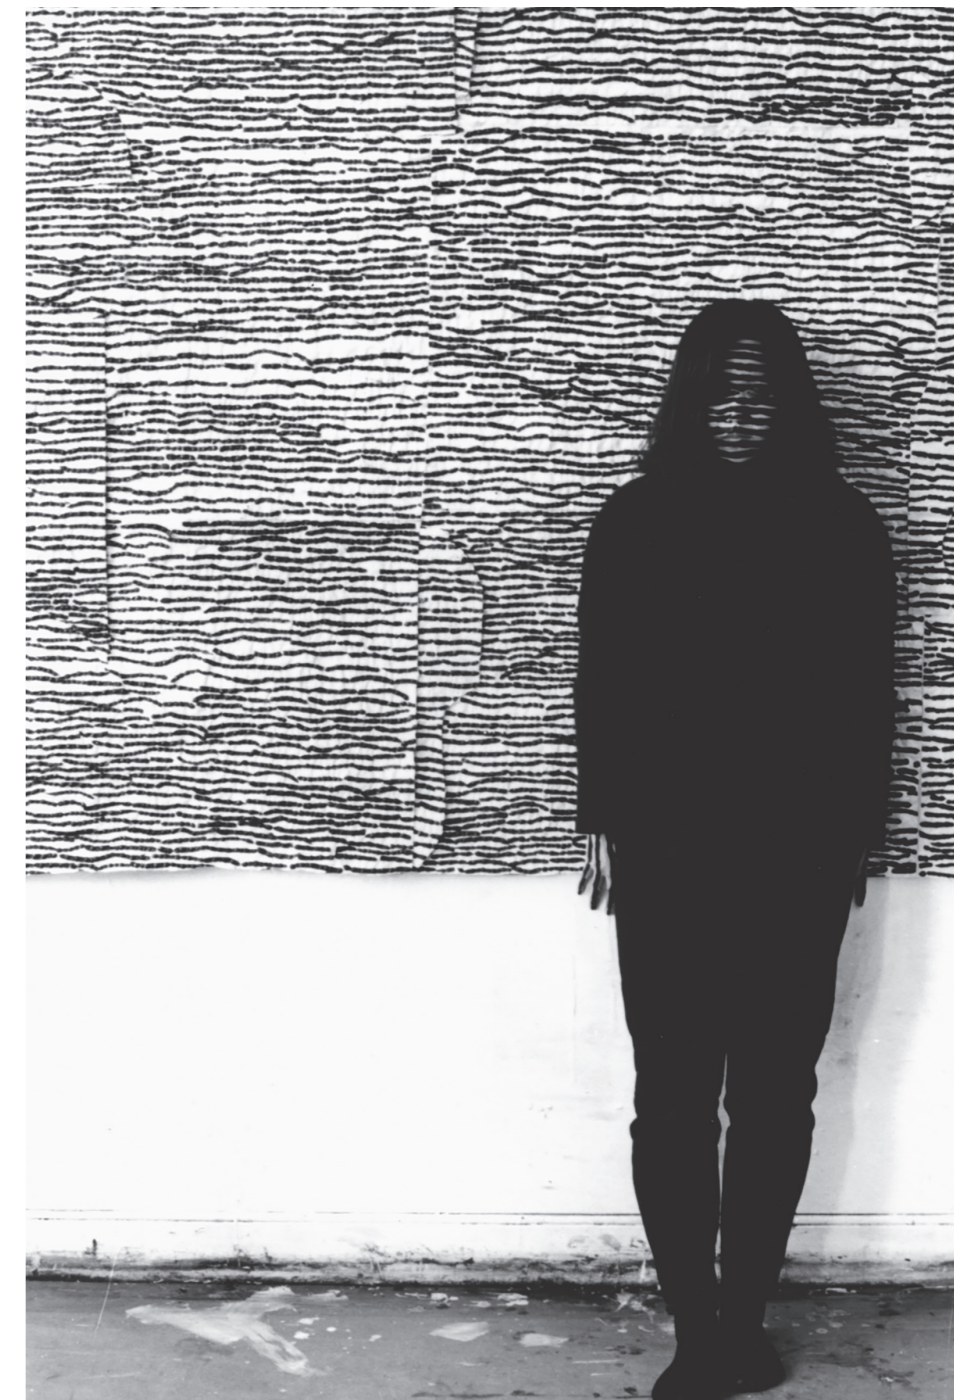

CATALOGUE Chiharu Shiota: The Unsettled Soul

Edited by Christelle Havranek

Along with the exhibition The Unsettled Soul, Kunsthalle Praha is set to release an illustrated catalogue in February 2025, with international distribution by the prestigious Berlin publishing house DCV. In addition to extensive photographic documentation of the exhibition, the uniquely designed publication with hand-stitched Japanese fukurotoji binding features an essay by curator and writer Jason Waite discussing Chiharu Shiota's early works as well as the material realities of Japan that shaped her practice. The publication also includes an interview with the artist conducted by the editor of the catalogue and curator of the exhibition, Christelle Havranek, which focuses on the main themes of Shiota's installations and the creation of the current exhibition.

Available from mid-February 2025 in the Kunsthalle Praha Design Shop and at www.shop.kunsthallepraha.org.
